List new courses required for the new or revised curriculum. How do they support the overall program objectives of the major/minor/concentrations)?
(Be aware that approval of the curriculum is dependent upon these courses successfully passing through the Course Challenge list. If there are no new courses enter “None”)

None

Explain, when appropriate, how this new/revised curriculum supports the 10 goals of undergraduate education: <http://www.ugs.udel.edu/gened/>

The Environmental Science program proposed curriculum changes support the 10 General Education goals by allowing more flexibility for students to engage in non-traditional courses (e.g., discovery learning experience or service learning courses) and extend beyond the ENSC core requirements.

Identify other units affected by the proposed changes:

(Attach permission from the affected units. If no other unit is affected, enter “None”)

None

Describe the rationale for the proposed program change(s):

(Explain your reasons for creating, revising, or deleting the curriculum or program.)

The interdisciplinary Environmental Science (ENSC) program is a rather rigid program with limited opportunities for students to engage in non-traditional coursework or specialize beyond the ENSC requirements. The core requirements of ENSC entail 54 credit hours (with an additional 31 credits necessary in the related science and mathematics) which is larger than many other BS programs. In addition, the current requirements of the ENSC program limit the flexibility for students to fulfill a minor outside of the three concentration areas (Atmospheric, Biological, Geological, and Marine Environment), study abroad during the regular fall or spring semester, conduct independent research with a faculty member, and/or specialize in geospatial technologies (geographic information systems, remote sensing, spatial data analysis). Moreover, our students are also having difficulty completing breadth requirements in their first two years with many saving those requirements to complete during a study abroad semester. This rationale of reducing the breadth requirements is in line with the recent College of Arts and Sciences change in the BA requirements reducing the number of courses in each group from 12 credits to 9 credits. Reducing the number of required courses in each group will allow students more flexibility to develop or discover interests and talents outside or complementary to the ENSC program.

Program Requirements:

(Show the new or revised curriculum as it should appear in the Course Catalog. If this is a revision, be sure to indicate the changes being made to the current curriculum and include a side-by-side comparison of the credit distribution before and after the proposed change.)

Please note that we are also requesting to delete the phrase “At least two areas must be represented” for each Group. This will allow students the flexibility to select any two courses within a group and the option to complete a two semester sequence in a topical area of interest.
