TO: All Faculty Members

FROM: Arthur E. Hoerl, Vice President
University Faculty Senate

SUBJECT: Regular Faculty Meeting, March 3, 1980

February 25, 1980

In accordance with Section IV, paragraph 6 of the Constitution, the regular meeting of the University Faculty Senate will be held on Monday, March 3, 1980 at 4:00 p.m. in room 110 Memorial Hall.

AGENDA

I. Adoption of the Agenda.

II. Approval of the Minutes of the January 7, 1980 and February 4, 1980 meetings.

Correction to the previously approved Minutes of December:

The last paragraph of the Minutes of the second session of the December, 1979 meeting (page 6) should be replaced by:

Senator R. Murray made a motion to charge the college promotions and tenure committees to review the merits of the candidates' dossiers as well as to ensure reasonable uniformity on promotion at the college level. President Smith noted that it was 5:30 and asked the senators how they wished to proceed. In the absence of objection President Smith declared the meeting recessed for one week, to be reconvened on December 17 at 4:00, with Senator Murray's resolution on the floor for consideration at that time.

III. Remarks by President Trabant and/or Provost Campbell.

IV. Announcements - Senate President Smith.

V. Old Business - none.
II. New Business

C. Recommendation from the Committee on Academic Freedom (M. Haskell, chair) for an addition to the Faculty Handbook statement on Academic Freedom. (Note: relevant documentation is given in Attachment 2.)

WHEREAS: The Senate action of December 4, 1978 amending the Faculty Handbook statement on Academic Freedom inadvertently caused a paragraph dealing with censorship and surveillance to be dropped from that statement; and

WHEREAS: the paragraph in question makes no reference to the appropriate use of classroom observation as part of the process of faculty evaluation;

Therefore, BE IT RESOLVED: that the following statement be added to the existing section on Academic Freedom on p. III-B-1 of the Faculty Handbook:

Academic freedom is incompatible with censorship or surveillance of communications on and off campus. The monitoring or interference with communications emanating from a member or group of the University cannot be condoned. Practices such as telephone tapping, surveillance and stoppage of mail, censorship at the Duplicating Center of materials emanating from within the University community, or censorship of bulletin boards designated for general use, are contrary to University policy. Classroom visitations for the purpose of teaching evaluation are permissible, but such visitations shall adhere to standards contained in a written statement approved by a majority of department faculty and shall in no case be made without prior arrangement with the faculty members involved.

D. Recommendation from the Committee on Student Life (J. Nathan, chair) for approval of a revised statement of Student Rights and Responsibilities (Attachment 3).

RESOLVED, that the revised statement of Student Rights and Responsibilities, as given in Attachment 3 of this Agenda, is approved.

E. Recommendation from the Coordinating Committee on Education (J. O'Neill, chair) regarding the Pass/Fail policy.

RESOLVED, that undergraduate students registered for pass/fail credit must fulfill the same requirements as students registered for regular credit if they are to receive credit for the course.
F. Recommendations from the Committee on Graduate Studies (A. Morehart, chair) for changes in graduate policies (Attachments 4, 5, and 6).

RESOLVED: The graduate studies regulation governing the selection and composition of doctoral students' advisory committees (Graduate Studies Policies and Procedures, PDE-18) be amended as shown in Attachment 4.

Mr. Stephen L. Finner
American Association of University Professors
1350 I, 46th Street
New York, N.Y. 10017

Dear Steve:

It has come to the attention of the University of Delaware Academic Freedom Committee that a critical portion of the old academic freedom statement, dealing with censorship and surveillance, is missing from the revised version which passed the Senate on December 4, 1972. The provisions and current presidents of the Senate, Ralph Banker and T. Jaron Roberts, believe that the entire clause in question was inadvertently dropped as the result of a typographical error in the Senate resolution which led to the revision of the statement. Thus, it read "... replace the italicized paragraph", rather than "italicized paragraph".

Since you were Chairman of the Academic Freedom Committee at the time of the revision, I am writing to determine whether you have any recollections of the matter. Specifically, was the intention of the Committee to replace the paragraph on censorship and surveillance?

For your information, I am sending copies of the two statements and the Senate resolution.

Sincerely,

Mark A. Haskell
Professor and Chairman
University Senate Committee on Academic Freedom

Dear Mark:

I have in hand your letter of January 31, 1980. Both Ralph and Larry are correct. The paragraph regarding censorship was dropped in error. Unfortunately, I do not have any written material to substantiate this.

Thank you very much for returning the grievance workshop questionnaire. I will be very disappointed if the chapter at Delaware is not able to send anybody since nobody was represented at the last workshop. You will be hearing more from me. Regards to everybody in Newark.

Sincerely,

B. ACADEMIC FREEDOM

It is recognized that if faculty members are to teach and carry on research effectively academic freedom is necessary. Academic freedom is the freedom of the faculty to teach and speak out as the fruits of their research and scholarship dictate, even though their conclusions may be unpopular or contrary to public opinion. Both within and outside the classroom the faculty should exhibit the accuracy, restraint, and respect for the opinions of others appropriate to educators and persons of learning. In relations with the public, they should make it clear at all times whether they speak as private citizens, as experts on the subject in question or as institutional spokesmen. In speaking as private citizens, faculty should make clear that they are doing so. In this connection, use of University titles should be permitted for identification purposes only and it should be made clear that institutional endorsement is not implied.

The following statements were passed by the University Faculty Senate and were adopted as policy by the University administration.

The experience of freedom of speech, publication, religion, and assembly of which is a component of intellectual freedom, is to enhance the quality of life, and a democratic society. The need for freedom goes in parallel with freedom of expression and freedom of thought. Freedom of speech is necessary in order for the individual to participate in a democratic society.

Academic freedom is incompatible with censorship or surveillance of communications within and off the campus. The monitoring of communications by the University community cannot be condoned. Practices such as telephones tapping, University mail surveillance and stoppage, censorship at the Impression Center of materials emanating from within the University community, or censorship on bulletin boards designated for general use, are contrary to University policy.

B. ACADEMIC FREEDOM

It is recognized that if faculty members are to teach and carry on research effectively academic freedom is necessary. Academic freedom is the freedom of the faculty to teach and speak out as the fruits of their research and scholarship dictate, even though their conclusions may be unpopular or contrary to public opinion. Both within and outside the classroom the faculty should exhibit the accuracy, restraint, and respect for the opinions of others appropriate to educators and persons of learning. In relations with the public, they should make it clear at all times whether they speak as private citizens, as experts on the subject in question or as institutional spokesmen. In speaking as private citizens, faculty should make clear that they are doing so. In this connection, use of University titles should be permitted for identification purposes only and it should be made clear that institutional endorsement is not implied.

The following statements were passed by the University Faculty Senate and were adopted as policy by the University administration in 1979 by the Board of Trustees.

The teacher is entitled to full freedom in research and in the publication of results, but research for pecuniary return should be based upon an understanding with the authorities of the University.

The teacher is entitled to freedom in the classroom to discuss his/her subject but should be careful not to introduce into his/her teaching matter which has little or no relation to the subject.

The teacher is an individual, a member of a learned profession, as well as a member of an educational institution, and as such he/she should be free from institutional censorship or discipline, but his/her special position in the community imposes special obligations. As a person of learning and as an educator, the teacher should remember that the public may judge his/her profession and institution by his/her utterances. Hence the teacher should at all times be accurate, should express appropriate restraint, should show respect for the opinions of others, and should make every effort to indicate that he/she is not an institutional spokesman.
Item D, a recommendation for revision of the Faculty Handbook statement on Academic Freedom, was introduced by Senator Finner, chair of the Committee on Academic Freedom. He reviewed the history of the Handbook statement, beginning with a revision approved by the Senate in 1976 which had been returned by the Board of Trustees; this was followed by a resolution approved by the Senate in March, 1978, to replace the Handbook statement with the 1940 AAUP statement, and the 1970 Interpretive Comments on Academic Freedom. This Senate action was considered by the Board in June of 1978 and at their request a joint Board/Senate committee was formed to develop "a clear, concise and positive statement on academic freedom," the result being the presently recommended resolution. In a discussion on the exclusion of the 1970 Interpretive Comments from the proposed statement, Senator Finner said that the very specific language of the "Comments" was felt to be not consistent with the language of the 1940 Statement. He added that the agreement of the Senate committee to exclude the 1970 Interpretive Comments from the proposed statement did not, in the view of the committee, preclude their use in any particular application of the policy. In response to a question from Senator Barlow, Senator Finner said that if problems arose regarding the definition of "matter that has little or no relation to the subject" the procedures already in place in the Handbook and the Collective Bargaining Agreement would be adequate, and that the burden of proof would not fall on the faculty member. There was no further discussion and the following was approved by unanimous voice vote:

RESOLVED, that the Faculty Senate approves the following statement on Academic Freedom, to replace the italicized paragraphs of III-B-1 of the Faculty Handbook:

The teacher is entitled to full freedom in research and in the publication of results, but research for pecuniary return should be based upon an understanding with the authorities of the University.

The teacher is entitled to freedom in the classroom in discussing his/her subject but should be careful not to introduce into his/her teaching matter which has little or no relation to the subject.

The teacher is an individual, a member of a learned profession, as well as a member of an educational institution. When speaking as an individual, he/she should be free from institutional censorship or discipline, but his/her special position in the community imposes special obligations. As a person of learning and as an educator, the teacher should remember that the public may judge his/her profession and institution by his/her utterances. Hence the teacher should at all times be accurate, should exercise appropriate restraint, should show respect for the opinions of others, and should make every effort to indicate that he/she is not an institutional spokesperson.

President Trabant called attention to the fact that the history of the Academic Freedom Statement showed a situation in which a Senate action had been endorsed by the Administration but had not been accepted by the Board's committee.
STUDENT RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

PREAMBLE

As an academic community, the University of Delaware exists for the pursuit of learning and truth, for the development of students as scholars and citizens, and ultimately, for the well-being of society. Free inquiry and free expression are indispensable to the attainment of these goals. The University’s responsibility for creating and maintaining an atmosphere conducive to these freedoms is shared by students, faculty, administrative personnel and trustees.

The University community accepts its responsibilities to develop policies and procedures which provide and safeguard these freedoms, and to promote the corresponding responsibilities within the framework of the University Charter, the Bylaws of the Board of Trustees, and the Bylaws of the Faculty.

As integral members of the University community, students exercise responsibility while developing their capacity for critical judgment and engaging in a sustained and independent search for truth. Students shall exercise their freedoms in a manner that does not infringe upon the rights and freedoms of others.

I. FREEDOM OF ACCESS TO HIGHER EDUCATION

The University of Delaware sets its own admission requirements and procedures. It selects students for admission on the basis of academic qualifications as indicated by high school performance, test scores, and the recommendations of teachers and guidance personnel. In appraising applicants, the University also looks for evidence of good character, citizenship, and personal attributes. It is the policy of the University of Delaware that no person shall be subject to discrimination on the grounds of race, color, creed, sex, age, national or ethnic origin, or handicap or veteran status. As a publicly assisted institution, the University gives first preference in the admission of students to residents of Delaware. Appropriate facilities and services of the University are available to all full-time undergraduate students.

II. IN THE CLASSROOM

The professor, whether in the classroom or in conference, fosters relevant free discussion, inquiry and expression.

A student is free to take reasonable exception to the data offered in any course of study and to reserve judgment about matters of opinion without threat of undue censure by the professor.

Information about student views, beliefs, and political associations which professors acquire in the course of their work as instructors, advisers, and counselors is considered confidential.

Protection of the student against improper disclosure, as provided for in the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, is a professional obligation of the faculty, administration and their staffs. Judgments of ability and character which a professor may reveal under certain circumstances, are provided with the knowledge and express written consent of a student.
Faculty inform students of the requirements to be met in each course and the criteria by which students are graded. A student is responsible for learning the prescribed content of any course of study for which he or she enrolls. Faculty evaluate student performance in the classroom solely on an academic basis, and not on a student's philosophies or conduct in matters unrelated to academic performance.

A student who contends to have encountered capricious or prejudiced academic evaluation may utilize the University Student Grievance Procedure as a means of redress.

Academic honesty is a prime responsibility of every student. Students found guilty of academic dishonesty within the Student Judicial System will receive a failing grade in the course and other sanctions as deemed appropriate.

III. STUDENT RECORDS

The University of Delaware maintains for each student a permanent academic record and a separate disciplinary record.

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 grants students certain rights, privileges and protections relative to individually identifiable student educational records which are maintained by the University. Specifically: (1) Students' education records (with the exception of directory information) will be released to third parties outside the University only with the written consent of the student. (2) Students have the right to inspect their own individually identifiable educational records. This right may be exercised by completing a request form in the Office of the Director of Records. (3) Students have the right to challenge information contained in individually identifiable educational records. Procedures for challenging records may be obtained from the Director of Records.

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 permits the release of directory type information to third parties outside the University without written consent of the student provided the student has been given the opportunity to withhold such disclosure. Directory information includes name, address, telephone number, college, class, major, dates of attendance, and degree, honors and awards conferred. Students may withhold directory information by notifying the Records Office in writing. Withholding requests will be honored for only one academic year; therefore, requests must be filed annually with the Records Office.

IV. STUDENT DEVELOPMENT

Freedom of Association

Students are free to organize and join associations to promote their common interests. Student organizations petition the Delaware Undergraduate Student Congress for registration by filing an "Application for Registration." Upon approval of the Delaware Undergraduate Student Congress and the Office of the Dean of Students, organizations receive the status of being a registered student organization. Registered student organizations may have an affiliation with organizations, national and/or regional, outside the University of Delaware and be subject to policies and requirements of a parent organization, provided that this relationship entails no conflict with University objectives, policies and activities. The University reserves the right to deny registration to student groups whose major focus involves activities which expose their members to high personal risk.

Under the provisions defined above, membership, policies and actions of a registered student organization are all determined by a vote of only those persons who are members of the University community. Membership in registered student organizations is limited to full-time undergraduate students, unless specific exceptions are authorized in the "Application for Registration."

Every student organization must choose an adviser from the faculty, professional, or staff members of the University. Registration is not withheld or withdrawn solely because of the temporary inability of a student organization to get an adviser. Generally speaking, the selection of an adviser is solely the prerogative of the student organization. The termination of the advisory relationship may be made by either the organization or the adviser. Advisers may counsel organizations in the exercise of responsibility but they do not have the authority to control the policy of such organizations. In a limited number of activities, such as student publications, professional societies, and campus radio station, advisers are appointed in accordance with stated University or organizational requirements. This is reflective of the fact that for such organizations advisers may need to have special knowledge in a particular field.

Registered student organizations may use University facilities designated by University officers for meetings and other programmed activities when the facilities are available and the events are properly planned and scheduled. For certain types of activities, and use of certain facilities and equipment, charges are assessed. In these instances organizations receive advance notification of the charges other than those to be made for unpredictable damages for which they were responsible.

No registered student organization is to be granted privileges denied to another or to be subjected to regulations not binding on another.

The registration status of a group may be rescinded by the Delaware Undergraduate Student Congress and the Office of the Dean of Students in accordance with procedures established for this purpose.

Freedom of Inquiry and Expression

Students and registered student organizations are free to examine and to discuss all questions of interest to them and to express opinions publicly and privately in a responsible way. They are free to support causes by orderly means including any means of peaceful assembly or advocacy which does not infringe upon the rights or freedoms of others. At the same time, it is made clear to the academic community and to the public that in their expressions or demonstrations students or registered student organizations speak only for themselves.

In accordance with the Campus Speakers Policy, registered student organizations are allowed to invite and to hear any person of their own choosing. Guest appearances must not interfere with the University's regular instructional, research, and service programs. Except for ceremonial occasions, invited speakers should be prepared for a reasonable public discussion of their expressed views.

The institutional control of campus facilities is not to be used as a device of censorship. Sponsorship of guest speakers does not imply approval or endorsement of the views expressed, either by the sponsoring organization or the institution.

Invited speakers are accorded the full courtesy and protection appropriate to a university community. Individuals or groups who engage in actions designed to obstruct or in any way to prevent the speaker from speaking are subject to discipline and to financial responsibility in the event of damage to property or person.
Student Participation in Institutional Governance

As constituents of the University community, students are free, individually and collectively, to express their views on issues of institutional policy and on matters of general interest to the student body. The Delaware Undergraduate Student Congress shall serve as the student government body for undergraduate students. Subject to the provisions of Section 5111 of Title 14, Delaware Code, students have a major role in the formulation of University policies directly affecting them and, through the Delaware Undergraduate Student Congress, may formulate and recommend to the University Faculty Senate policies pertaining to student social activities and conduct. Such policies shall not be inconsistent with federal, state or local laws.

Student Media

Where feasible, student media are independent corporations financially and legally separate from the University. Where this is not feasible, the University Faculty Senate, in consultation with students and the administration, have a responsibility to provide written clarification of the role of University student media, standards to be used in their evaluation, and the limitations on external control of their operations.

The editorial freedom of student editors and managers involves the corresponding obligation to be governed by the canons of responsible journalism. These entail the responsibility to avoid libel, undocumented allegations, techniques of harassment and innuendo, and so forth. At the same time the following provisions safeguard editorial freedom.

Student publications are free of censorship and advance approval of copy. Editors and managers are free to develop their own editorial policies and news coverage. In the delegation of editorial responsibility to students, the institution provides sufficient editorial freedom and financial autonomy for student publications to maintain their integrity of purpose as vehicles of free inquiry and free expression in a university community.

The Faculty Senate through its Committee on Student Life shall ensure that all campus media have written operating documents and shall provide faculty representation on boards of advisory committees.

For the purpose of this statement the term "media" is construed to include the campus student newspaper(s), the campus student radio station, and the student yearbook.

V. OFF-CAMPUS FREEDOM OF STUDENTS

Exercise of Rights of Citizenship

Students at the University of Delaware are both private citizens and members of the University community. As citizens, students enjoy the same freedom of speech, peaceful assembly, and right of petition that other citizens enjoy. As members of the University community, they are expected to follow University rules and regulations outlined in the Student Code of Conduct. Faculty members and administrative officials ensure that institutional powers are not employed to inhibit the intellectual and personal development of students exercising their rights both on and off the campus.

Institutional Authority and Civil Penalties

Students at the University of Delaware are expected and required to abide by local, state and federal laws. Students do not have special rights with respect to the use of University facilities as sanctuary from local, state or federal laws. Students need to be aware that charges may be brought both within the University Student Judicial System and in the off-campus courts. This is reflective of the fact that students have a responsibility to both the on- and off-campus community. The University administration is responsible for establishing a procedure for reviewing and taking institutional action related to students who are found guilty of off-campus violations of local, state or federal laws. While the University will not act as a policing agent for students when they are off the campus, the University reserves the right to take action if a student’s behavior is judged to be contrary to the pursuit of the educational mission of the University or if the continued presence of the student on campus poses a threat to his or her well-being or to the rights and property of members of the University community.

VI. CONDUCT EXPECTATIONS

It is the obligation of each member of the University community to act so as to give fullest respect to the views and activities of fellow members of the University community; to proceed in all actions with thoughtfulness and openness; and to treat every member of the University community in such a way as to acknowledge each person’s humanity.

Student Conduct and Discipline

In developing responsible student conduct, disciplinary action plays a secondary role to example, counseling, guidance and admonition. The University community protects its educational purpose by setting standards of scholarship and conduct for its students, and by regulating the use of University facilities.

The administration of discipline guarantees procedural fairness to an accused student. Disciplinary proceedings may be instituted by any member of the University community only for violations of standards of conduct published in advance. In all situations, students are informed of the charge against them and are given a fair opportunity to refute those charges. The Vice President for Student Affairs and Administration is responsible for the establishment of a student judicial system to adjudicate violations of the code of conduct. Students charged with conduct violations within the Student Judicial System may also be charged in off-campus courts at the same time.

Code of Conduct

Any student who commits, aids, or attempts to commit any of the following acts of misconduct shall be subject to action under the Student Judicial System:

1. False Information
   Knowingly making a false oral or written statement in a University disciplinary hearing; reporting the false presence of an explosive, incendiary device, or fire.

2. Misuse of Materials

3. Misuse of Property
   A. Destruction, damage, misuse or defacing of University building or property, or private property on the campus or at a University-sponsored event.
   B. Misuse of any University fire alarm or fire fighting/safety equipment.

4. Theft
   The unauthorized taking, misappropriation, or possession of any property owned or maintained by the University or any person on the campus or attending a University-sponsored event.

5. Weapons, Firearms or Explosive Devices on Campus
   Unauthorized possession or use of firearms, fireworks or chemicals which are explosive in nature, and other types of arms classified as weapons.

6. Residence Hall Regulations
   Failure to abide by residence hall regulations in the Residence Hall Handbook.

7. Disruptive Conduct
   Acting to impair, interfere with or obstruct the orderly conduct processes and functions of the University.
   A. Violence or threat of violence against any member or guest of the University community.
   B. Harassment: Deliberately acting with intent to harass any member or guest.
   C. Interference with freedom of movement of any member or guest.
   D. Interfering with the rights of others to enter, use, or leave any University facility, service, or activity.
   E. Interference with the freedom of speech of any member or guest of the University.
   F. Trespassing or unauthorized entry.

8. Privacy
   Failure to respect the right of privacy of any member of the University community.

9. Policy Regulations
   Violation of University policies described in this handbook.

10. Academic Dishonesty
    The first law of academic life is intellectual honesty. Academic relationships within the University community should be governed by a sense of honor, fair play and trust and a readiness to give appropriate credit to the intellectual endeavors of others where such credit is due. The following guidelines are provided as examples of ways in which these proper relationships and attitudes may break down.

One form of academic dishonesty is plagiarism. Plagiarism is intellectual larceny, the theft of ideas or their manner of expression. The following are examples of plagiarism:

A. Copying another student's test answers
B. Taking an essay from a magazine and passing it off as your own work.
C. Lifting a well-phrased sentence or two and including them without crediting the author or using quotation marks.
D. Passing another person's good ideas as examples of your own.¹

Plagiarism covers:

A. Unpublished as well as published sources.
B. Borrowing another's term paper.
C. Handing in as one's own work a paper purchased from an individual or agency.
D. Submitting as one's own papers from a living group, club or organization files.

A student will avoid being charged with plagiarizing if there is an acknowledgment of indebtedness:

1. Whenever you quote another person's actual words;
2. Whenever you use another person's idea, opinion or theory, even if it is completely paraphrased in your own words; and,
3. Whenever you borrow facts, statistics, or other illustrative materials - unless the information is common knowledge.²

Students are urged to consult with individual faculty members, academic departments or recognized handbooks in their field if in doubt.

Other forms of academic dishonesty include, but are not limited to, the following:

A. Consultation of textbooks, library materials, or notes in examinations where such materials are not to be used during the test.
B. Use of crib sheets or other hidden notes in an examination.
C. Looking at another student's test paper to copy answers.
D. Having another person supply questions or answers from an examination to be given or in progress.
E. Having a person other than the one registered and taking a course stand in at an examination or any other graded activity (in which cases all consenting parties to the attempt gain unfair advantage shall be deemed culpable and subject to penalties).
F. Deliberate falsification of laboratory results, or submission of samples or findings not legitimately derived in the situation and by the procedures prescribed or allowable.

G. Submission in a paper, thesis, lab report or other academic exercises of falsified, invented, or fictitious data or evidence, or deliberate and knowing concealment or distortion of the true nature, origin, or function of such data or evidence.

H. Procurement and/or alteration without permission from appropriate authority of examinations, papers, lab reports, or other academic exercises, whether discarded or actually used, and either before or after such materials have been handed in to the appropriate recipient.

I. Collaborating with others on projects where such collaboration is expressly forbidden.

Again, students are urged to consult with their individual faculty members when in doubt.

A student suspected of committing an academically dishonest act should be referred to the University Student Judicial System. Students found guilty of academic dishonesty will receive a minimum, mandatory sanction of failure in the course. Additional sanctions provided for within the University Student Judicial System document may also be applied.

Acknowledgement is also given to the Kansas State University Student Handbook 1978-79 which served as a model for this section.

11. Failure to Comply

A. Failure to comply with the directives of University officials acting in the performance of their duties.

B. Failure to comply with a directive of a disciplinary hearing officer,
Board or Court.

VII. AMENDMENTS TO THE STATEMENT

Changes or amendments to this Statement are the responsibility of the University Faculty Senate.
Graduate Studies Policy Manual PDE-18
(Graduate Catalog 1979-81, page 15)

Current:

For each candidate a program of study is planned by an advisory committee. The Chairperson of the department or the chairperson of the departmental graduate committee in the field of concentration advises candidates until the advisory committee is appointed. The committee consists of not less than four and not more than six graduate faculty members nominated and approved by the graduate faculty members of the major department. The chairperson of the committee is the faculty member in charge of the candidate's research and dissertation. At least two members represent the major field, one the area of minor study, with one faculty member at-large. In the case of dissenting votes, the majority opinion rules.

Proposed:

Replace the underlined sentence by:

The committee shall consist of not less than three nor more than five members nominated by the graduate faculty members of the major department and approved by the University Coordinator for Graduate Studies; in addition, one further member of the committee shall be appointed by the University Coordinator for Graduate Studies (after receiving the suggestions of the faculty member in charge of the candidate's research and dissertation) from outside the candidate's department (or unit).

Delete the italicized words: with one faculty member at-large.
Students enrolled in Graduate Studies may receive credit by examination for graduate level courses at the discretion of the appropriate department, division, or college, and with the approval of the Office of Graduate Studies. Permission is possible only under the following circumstances: credit by examination is restricted to content courses offered by the University of Delaware; special problems, research, independent study, and experimental courses shall not be recognized as appropriate, and the examination shall be in written form only.

A student permitted to take such examinations will receive one of three possible grades: A, B, or F. If an A or B is received, this grade will become part of the student's graduate studies record. If the student fails, the grade will not become part of the record. If, after failing the examination for credit, the student wishes to obtain credit for such a course, the course must be taken and a grade appropriate to the level of performance will be given. Whatever grade the student receives at that point will become a part of the official record. To have the credit(s) officially recorded, the appropriate signed form is submitted to the Records Office by the Office of Graduate Studies.

Change: Add underlined material
PCR-17-GRADUATE AND CEND CUMULATIVE INDEXES

Based on the philosophy that no graduate degree program consists only of courses and credits and that to be enrolled in a graduate degree program candidates must be directed by an advisor who is appointed to function at the graduate level, indexes for graduate programs shall be considered as distinct from CEND indexes. Therefore, the index for initial and intervening CEND registrations shall be calculated separately.

In addition, the cumulative index for each series of registrations during which a student holds a graduate classification with a different major shall be considered as distinct from the cumulative index of prior graduate classifications and, therefore, calculated separately. The index calculation shall continue, however, for students whose classification is changed from Graduate Master's to Graduate Doctoral within the same major or changed from Graduate Master's to Graduate Non-degree.
