Permission to change a course registration status after the standard deadline, including dropping a course, will be granted by the Division of Continuing Education only with the written approval of the instructor and the dean of the college in which the student was last matriculated, unless the student is seeking readmission to a different college. In the latter case, permission should be sought from the instructor and the dean of the college to which the student seeks readmission.

Memorandum

Attachment 4

January 21, 1988

TO: Dr. Carl Toensmeyer, President
Faculty Senate

FROM: Dean David M. Nelson
College of Physical Education, Athletics, and Recreation

SUBJECT: Disestablishment of the Department of Physical Education and Reorganization of the College of Physical Education, Athletics, and Recreation

With the recommendation of the Faculty Committee on Administrative Review of the College of Physical Education, Athletics, and Recreation and the endorsement of President Jones, Provost Campbell, and the College's Department Chair and Directors, I submit the following reorganization proposal for Faculty Senate approval:

1. Disestablish the Department of Physical Education.
2. Establish three programs as equal units in the College of Physical Education, Athletics, and Recreation instead of an Intercollegiate Athletics Program, a Recreation and Intramurals Program, and a Physical Education Department.
3. Establish directors of three programs instead of directors of Intercollegiate Athletics, Recreation and Intramurals, and a chairperson of Physical education.
4. Change the title of the chairperson of Physical Education to director of Physical Education Programs.

The proposed disestablishment of the Department of Physical Education and the reorganization of the College of Physical Education, Athletics, and Recreation is based on the need to clearly define the role of faculty assigned in the Physical Education, Intercollegiate Athletics, and Recreation and Intramural Programs. Presently, all faculty in the College are assigned to the Department of Physical Education, but 31 of 44 faculty have appointments in Intercollegiate Athletics or Recreation and Intramurals and are responsible to the directors of these programs. Faculty are best served when workload, salaries, evaluations, promotions, and merit increases are determined by the administrator of the program to which they are appointed.

The disestablishment of the Department of Physical Education places the faculty in one or more of the College programs and not all in Physical Education. The faculty will have appointments in one of the three College programs and joint appointments if they have assignments in more than one program. Reorganizing with three programs will permit an accurate accounting of faculty workload for comparison within the College and with other units in the University.

The report of the College Administrative Review Committee and a brief history of the College of Physical Education, Athletics, and Recreation are attached.

Memorandum

October 13, 1987

TO: Dean David M. Nelson
FROM: Professor C. Roy Rylander
SUBJECT: Administrative Review Committee Revision

The Faculty Committee reviewing the results of the administrative change combining the positions of Associate Dean and Acting Chairperson in the College of Physical Education, Athletics, and Recreation approved the action and proposes an additional administrative adjustment.

The appointment of a Director of Physical Education programs, identical to the Directors of Intercollegiate Athletics, and Recreation and Intramurals in the College, would establish all programs with equal status. Faculty assigned to one of the three programs, or having joint appointments, would have their workload, salaries, evaluations, promotions, and merit increases best served under the three-Director organization.

This Committee, therefore, unanimously recommends the replacement of the Physical Education Chairperson with a Director of Physical Education Programs.

The Committee members present assume that the Director of the Physical Education Program will have responsibility for Recreation degree programs (in addition to the Physical Education degree programs) including the areas of workloads, salaries, evaluations, promotions, and merit increases.

Addendum

Physical Education, Athletics and Recreation Organization 1951-1987

The history of the College of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreation provides the evolution leading to the present reorganization proposal. The College was the Division of Health, Physical Education, Athletics and Recreation until 1952-53 when Health was moved to the jurisdiction of the Dean of Students. The Director of the Division and the Director of Athletics positions were combined with the Head Football coaching assignment. At that time, all faculty were assigned to teaching in the degree programs in addition to one or more coaching or recreational assignments. The men's and women's Departments of Physical Education, each with a chairperson, were the Division's academic units. All faculty were assigned to one department or another until 1968-69 when the departments were combined.

The Division of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreation became the College of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreation on December 10, 1980 with the Dean and Athletic Director positions combined. With the establishment of the College, Physical Education, Athletics and Recreation were joined as an academic unit for the first time.

With the Dean and Athletic Director's positions combined and the Dean's office located in Delaware Field House, two miles from the academic and recreation faculty and programs, it was necessary to appoint an Associate Dean in 1982-83.

To permit the Dean to meet the responsibilities of the office, as outlined in the College of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreation faculty by-laws, Edgar Johnson was appointed Athletic Director on September 1, 1984, and the Dean moved to Carpenter Sports building with a mandate to upgrade the College's academic programs.

With the dean's and athletic director's duties separated and the Dean moved to Carpenter Sports Building, site of the academic programs, the Associate Dean was relieved of assignments required when the Dean was also Athletic Director. The positions of Associate Dean and Physical Education Chairperson were combined to eliminate an unnecessary tier of administration, and provide an academic administrator without coaching responsibilities.

Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures

RE: Proposal for B.A. in Foreign Languages and Literatures

Attached is a proposal for a new B.A. degree, which is intended to unify all of our existing B.A. programs under one roof, and to use existing courses to create some new concentrations. Our existing B.A. programs are in Classics, French, German, Latin, Russian, and Spanish language and literature; Latin and Russian Education; and Three Languages and Four Languages. In 1986-87 we had a total of 144 majors and 138 minors.

On a preliminary basis, a B.A. in French Culture and Civilization and a B.A. in Spanish Culture and Civilization were approved last year; but the Department chose to include them, and a parallel program in German, as options under concentrations of the B.A.F.L.L. New options, interdisciplinary in nature, include Area Studies and Period Studies.

We believe that this new degree program, like its sister graduate degree, the M.A.F.L.L., will provide students with greater flexibility and choice of concentrations and options while allowing for greater ease of administration. With one major degree offered, the Department's programs will have greater internal coherence while also encouraging more interaction between the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures and other departments in the College of Arts and Science.

Please let me know if you require further documentation or explanations of concentrations and options.

PROPOSAL FOR B. A. IN FOREIGN LANGUAGES AND LITERATURES

I. RATIONALE

The Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures offers a large number of B.A. degrees in various languages and literatures: Classics, French, German, Latin, Russian, Spanish, and Languages. There are, in a typical year, some 150 majors in these programs, and another 130 minors. But because the students are divided among seven degree-granting programs, each bearing its own nomenclature, few people on campus are aware of the extent of the Department's student population.

As the Department is seeking a new identity (with a new name: Foreign Languages and Literatures), a new undergraduate program accompanying our department-wide M.A. in Foreign Languages and Literatures program would be an ideal medium to pull the Department's various sections together both symbolically (all degrees would have the same title) and concretely (some of the concentrations would create possibilities for intradepartmental cooperative ventures). Furthermore, some options would involve interdepartmental cooperation as well (area studies, period studies). With this new program, the Department's internal coherency would be strengthened, and its extradepartmental interests would be more firmly established.

Among the other advantages of this new degree are the following:

- A. Simplification of administration and reporting: there will be a single major for the Department, with nine concentrations, generally according to the language studied.
- B. Individualization of student programs (students will be able to switch from one option to another, for example, from Spanish language and literature to Spanish area studies with relative ease) and flexibility in departmental programs (the various options under each concentration share a common core).
- C. Clarity of choices: students will be able to choose a concentration by consulting the program catalog, and a well-defined option within the framework of that concentration by consulting with their adviser or the Associate Chair of the Department; descriptive fliers outlining requirements for each option will be made available to students in a rack outside the Department office (see Appendix II for example).
- D. Closer and more careful advisement of students (made necessary by the specific requirements of the different options that many concentrations will offer).

- E. Possibility of admitting all languages and literatures taught in the Department (including Italian and perhaps eventually Portuguese and modern Greek) to participate in the B.A. program.

II. COST OF IMPLEMENTATION

No additional costs would be required.

III. FACULTY

The present faculty is qualified to teach the language and literature courses involved, and is now doing so.

IV. OUTLINE OF CONCENTRATIONS

A. Classics

(This concentration is unchanged.)

B. French Studies

There are four options proposed in this category: language and literature, which is the current program with minor modifications, principally in related areas ("Within the College" requirements); civilization and culture, which had received preliminary approval earlier, but which was withdrawn for inclusion in this major; area studies; and period studies.

C. German Studies

There are four options proposed in this category: language and literature, which is the current program with minor modifications, principally in related areas ("Within the College" requirements); civilization and culture, based on the French option; area studies; and period studies.
